

Today May 14 02:19 PM 30°C

SUBSCRIBE NOW 6 MONTHS $74.25 USD

Home\Lifestyle\ Kevin leading...

Kevin leading youth by example

ASHLEE COX, Added 06 December 2015

Share 0 Tweet 0 in Share 0 Email 0 Google + 2 Instagram 0 Print

2015 JCI West Indies national president Kevin Hinds wants more young people to give back to their communities. (Reco Moore)

MORE ARTICLES

Economy a major concern but no unified answer Read More

Facebook suspends 200 apps over data misuse investigation Read More

Ellerton beat Compton 3-0 Read More

Thriller tied up Read More

Role for ex-bishop Read More

It's not all about winning in amateur sport Read More

Feminist war movie captures zeitgeist at Cannes Read More

Kevin Hinds' rise to leadership positions came from his desire to give back to Barbados. This aspiration has served him well and one that he hopes to inspire in others.

Related articles

- Government will continue to empower...
- Thorne in line for global award...
- Fun day for special children

The 35-year-old husband and manager for business performance product and strategy implementation at the CIBC First Caribbean International Bank (FCIB), is also national president of Junior Chamber International (JCI) West Indies.

Hinds said that when he joined the local youth organisation's chapter in 2008, under the persuasion of his mentor, JCI Senator Paul Ashby, becoming the national president was not something on his agenda. He now describes it as one of his proudest accomplishments.

As part of his duties, Hinds, along with six delegates from the Caribbean, attended the JCI 2015 World Congress, which was held in Kanazawa, Japan.

Please read the full story in today's Sunday Sun, or in the eNATION edition.

